Hi,

I'm guessing testosterone.

He probably got too excited in the park today.

He didn't complain to me about anything.

Hi

Testerone doesn't cause lumps on the head. When I asked him what's causing the sore lump he says he fell from a rock yesterday and he cried.

Ndicela uqhubeke ubuze unyana wakho kuba mna andazi.

The one thing I know though, is that as I did at his age he has an excessive supply of testosterone, relative to any female any way, in my case all my sister's combined,

As a consequence of said excess my affinity for danger, consequently injury was just as high compared to them.

When my son is in any danger in my house I still have the expertise of the woman who raised his father, she bathed him today and expressed no concerns.

Then there's the other women who have raised boys older than Sazi, none of who had any concerns.

If you want to believe what your son tells you go ahead.
