Good morning

Thank you for the prompt order, I appreciate the speedy turnaround times.

Can you please confirm when do I see the replying affidavit? I would really appreciate a copy because that informs my actions while I'm waiting for the family advocate process.

I will I will accordingly pick up Sazi on Thursdays and the respondent can collect him on Saturdays.

Regards,

Good day

I seem to have made a mistake earlier, my apologies for this.

After considering I will appeal the decision.

- I have made serious allegations, some of which are criminal in my affidavit, these haven't been disputed.
- I have demonstrated the consequences what happened to the minor child under the primary care of the respondent.
- Inadvertently the respondent also admitted to having discipline issues with the minor because he has never done the things she says in his paternal home. I older boys than him for reference, all of whom have no issues.
- In terms of the Constitution it is legal to homeschool my child. I have demonstrated the futility of formal schooling using myself and the respondent who are the most relevant cases to the minor child. The respondent went to all the special classes, grades R and a Quantile 5 school, I went to a non paying school and came home to my mother to teach me. Despite all that, the respondent hasn't achieved any better outcomes than me, quite the opposite. Parenting is what is in the best interests of the child, I am here to parent and educate my son.

The best interests of the child prioritise a child being in the care of parents, instead of being raised by surrogates. I have worked so that I can be able to be at home, and dedicate my time to the most important person in my life, my son.

I will also be lodging a complaint with the Equality Court because I believe the only reason the respondent has primary care is because she is a woman, I am being discriminated against because I am a man. At no point has the respondent had better means than I, yet I was told that she must be found incapable as a mother for me to even be considered for primary care.

I appreciate your assistance, and once again I apologize for my earlier mistake. I will follow the law to the latter throughout this process, as I have to date.

Regards,
